This picture was sent to me by a gentlemen in Franklin, Tennessee. It was shot in April of 2011 off a cell phone and shows what he believes to be the spirit of his recently deceased grandmother in the doorway on the left (arrow). He also claims the woman's dog, also deceased, can be seen at the bottom of the photo. (I admit that initially I couldn't make it out, and it took some searching—along with an e-mail from a sharp-eyed viewer—to finally spot it but if you look carefully, you can just make out what appears to be the eyes and nose of a small dog at the bottom of the photo (circled in yellow above). If this is the case—and it's not a bit of matrixing—it would be the first photo I've ever seen that showed the apparition of both a human and an animal in the same shot, as well as evidence that pets can remain loyal companions even in death.

Unfortunately, the image quality is poor and the photo was sent without its metafile data, making it difficult to ascertain anything with clarity. I'm reasonable certain, however, it's not a Photoshop trick or motion blur, nor do I perceive any evidence of hoaxing in general. Of course, it could still be an iPhone hoax, but it has a certain inexplicable "feel" about it that rings authentic, and the gentlemen has been very good about discussing the image as well. All in all, a very good capture. (Photo used with permission. All rights reserved.)
